

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1864.

PUBLISHER OF THE NEW YORK PRESS. leading Editorials from the New York Papers This Morning.REPORT OF THE REBEL SECRETARY OF WAR.A report of the Rebel Secretary of War, some months old, has been sent North for circulation as a campaign document in the interest of the Peace Democracy. We publish the chief portion of it in other columns, that our readers may gain some notion of its contents. The general reader would find much more to interest him in the report if the retrospective which it takes over the summer campaigns.But for the partisans of Davis among ourselves, will strike a much better purpose than if it had been given to a later date, and taken a survey of Rebel disasters in Georgia and Mobile Bay, the Rebels in Virginia, and the shooting of the grand Rebel army under Lee, within pace of a few square miles around the Confederate capital. Viewing the matter in this light, the McMillan organ here introduces its notes to the public with the remark that "it is a able document, clearly distinguishing him to a large extent from the Southern face of the war in a light so as to attract, without doubt, the attention of other nations."Among the masters thus favorably presented "other nations" by the Rebel Secretary is an old friend of ours, General Beauregard, who had been engaged in the same kind of expeditions against Richmond, which is now the chief of the rebels over there. The names there were those of the grand Rebel army under Lee, within pace of a few square miles around the Confederate capital. Viewing the matter in this light,
large extent from the Southern face of the war in a light
so as to attract, without doubt, the attention of other nations."The good old frigate Brandywine is no more.
We speak of her now as a thing that is past.
Nobly she has assisted in earning a reputation for the gallant navy of her country nobly she has stood the test of years, nobly did she die freighted with the food for those who now fight for her banner in other vessels. She was built at the Gosport Navy Yard in 1821, and was put in commission in the year 1827, by Hon. James Monroe, then President of the United States, to carry the Mangnus de Lafayette from this country to France.She took fire on Saturday morning at 3 o'clock, and sank about noon Monday. The flames there were those of the grand Rebel army under Lee, within
derate capital. Viewing the matter in this light,
so as to attract, without doubt, the attention of other nations."Early on Saturday evening the authorities of the city of York attempted to scuttle the Brandywine, by firing 30-pounders at her hull, just below the water-line. She, however, resisted even in her last moments, all attempts at annihilation, and chose rather to die a comparatively natural death.It is impossible to estimate the amount of loss and damage to Government property, but the loss will be heavy.The Brandywine was fully equipped with ammunition, oil, water, &c., and the last order given to her crew was to stand by to the sword the women and children in Richmond—being served up anew to illustre."Other nations" are at the same time assured that all their efforts will have been suited in return for their friends.The Brandywine was captured by the rebels, between Market and Arch streets, set on the coast, and the stores on that shore. A liberal reward will be paid by leaving them at this office.

An all-pervading sense of uneasiness and distress has been the character of our legislation. However patricially intended, it is notdenied that the measures adopted by Congress for the reform of the currency, had the unintended effect of depreciating the value ofour money without receiving any benefit. Some months ago, Dr. Von Moschzisker, who has
